This was well in excess of the $1850 that had been established as a minimum requirement for the necessary repairs. Of the total amount over $600 was given by the Trustees personally.

The success of this appeal to the town residents indicates their keen appreciation of the library activities and is most encouraging to the Trustees.

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

A public hearing will be held at Odeon Hall on Aug. 30th at 8:00 p. m. to discuss the proposed change in the Zoning Ordinance covering the area between the railroad overhead bridge and the Androscoggin River Bridge. Currently there is an area 200 feet in width on each side of U. S. 2 between the bridges that is zoned residential. The purpose of the public hearing will be for discussion on changing this area to industrial, as it is already industrial to the east and west of the 200 foot strip.

Tax bills are currently being prepared and should be in the mail about Sept. 1st. Until the assessment book is typed, added and verified the final figures will not be available. However preliminary figures show an increase in the assessed valuation of $217,581 over 1960, with a total valuation of real and personal property amounting to $6,313,579. On the basis of this valuation and the appropriations at the annual and special town meetings the tax rate has been established at $30 per thousand valuation. The rate last year was $30.16, thus a slight reduction. The gain in new valuation slightly offset the increase in the appropriations.

Sincerely,
Harold L. Bean

Donald, Stuart and Norton Cross (the Cross Brothers) at work on the new 3350 foot T-Bar Lift at Mount Abram Ski Slopes.

Three Trails and New 3350 Ft. Lift Added at Mt. Abram Ski Slopes

In Locke Mills during this past summer the Cross Bros. and crew have made extensive headway in expanding their unique winter sports area, which heralded a successful season during the past year. The astonishing fact that Mt. Abram was able to open early for their very first year and remain open until nearly Easter time is definitely a "feather in a bonnet" for the owners and managers.

The same physical hard work, plus congenial teamwork in managing the business aspect of such an area by the Brothers Three will make possible the expansion plans for this coming season.

Already footings for the new 3350 ft. T-Bar lift have been poured and set. This new T-Bar, entirely separate from the T-Bar that was in operation last year, will service three new trails; a three-quarter mile expert slope; an intermediate slope covering one mile; and an advanced intermediate slope which is 3400 ft. long. These three slopes have already been cleared and need only some detailed grooming for the first snow fall. The new T-Bar itself which has already been delivered is in the process of being painted and assembled to be "painted soon."

Donald Cross, spokesman for the Brothers Three, mentioned that soon a new shiny Tucker Sco Car will arrive upon the scene, which will greatly help in the maintenance of the trails, come cold weather time.

Similar to last year, the same friendly and joyous atmosphere shall reign, not only outside on the slopes but inside the heated lodge, where light lunches are served and baby-sitting will be available much to the delight of

We are, of course, also interested in the response from those who have not been patients recently, because their replies will help us see where misconceptions may exist and in what areas the public, for whom the hospital exists, thinks improvements may be made."

"I was a patient last year for a few days, and think you have a very efficient, qualified staff, but your hospital is small. But with what you are working with, you are a credit to Rumford."

Ferguson, in reporting latest results, said the answers given in the questionnaire returned so far show that approximately 80 per cent of those replying hold that the present hospital is too small to serve adequately all who may apply for care, according to Charles L. Ferguson, president of the board of directors.

He pointed out that such demand has more than doubled throughout the nation since the 1940's and that the rate of increase has shown no sign of slackening.

High regard for the hospital personnel is indicated in replies to the question which asks the survey participant how he would describe the attitude of nurses and attendants at the hospital—kindly or indifferent. About three out of four have answered "kindly."

The hospital president said the board felt the answers and comments given so far are particularly significant because more than 90 per cent of the early replies have come from families where some member has been a patient during the last five years.

"Three people are speaking from first-hand experience," he said.

The West Parish Congregational Church was the setting Sunday afternoon, June 4, for the wedding of Miss Patricia Anne Brewster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell S. Brewster of Bethel, and Harley Dean Jordan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Jordan of Chester, S. C.

Rev. Clifford Laws performed the ceremony. Mrs. Doris Lord served as organist. The bride wore a formal length gown of white silk organza embroidered with hand-trimmed and pearls, over tulle. The processional was extended to the bell and chapel train. Her veil of imported silk illusion fell from a princess crown of orange blossom tips. She carried a cascade of white roses, baby's breath and trailing ivy.

Miss Penny MacKay of Crampton, R. I., was maid of honor. Miss Betty Berry of Newport, N. H., Miss Jean Barclay of Gloucester, N. Y., and Miss Nancy Brewster, cousin of the bride, of Summerville, S. C., were bridesmaids. They wore identical short length dresses of jade silk organza fashioned with fitted bodice and belted skirt. Their jade headresses were attached to organza bow bands with illusion face veils. Miss MacKay carried a colonial bouquet of deep pink carnations and baby's breath. The bridesmaids carried colonial bouquets of light pink carnations and baby's breath.

Thomas Burns of Rockford, Ill., fraternity brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers, also fraternity brothers, were William Bails of Laos Alton, Calif., Ronald Stevens, Miami, Fla., and Peter H. Anderson, Seattle, Wash.

A reception was held at the Gehring House. Miss Marjorie Morton of Bethel circulated the guest book. Mrs. Charles Raymond and Mrs. George Haley of Rangeley were in charge of gifts.

SONIC BOOM

The sonic boom can be described as an explosion-like sound heard when a shock wave, generated by an aircraft flying at supersonic speed, reaches the ear. An aircraft moving through the air at a speed exceeding that of sound generates pressure waves, called shock waves, which have pressure characteristics similar to those of blast waves.

If we could visually observe the waves, we would see that they are very similar to those created by a boat as it moves through the water. But unlike the flat surface of the water, the air through which the plane is moving is a three-dimensional medium. As a result, the waves attain the shape of a large cone, extending outward and rearward from the plane. The angle of the cone depends upon aircraft speed and the speed of sound in the surrounding medium. We would also see that there are two principal pressure cones, one originating at the nose of the plane called the bow wave, and one at the rear of the plane called the tail wave.

As long as the plane is exceeding the speed of sound, waves are continuously generated, just as the boat moving through the water, and stay attached to the plane until speed is reduced below that of sound. Although supersonic speeds are not normally attained until above 30,000 feet, it is nevertheless, characteristic of the pressure waves to travel in distance far enough to reach the ground, even from straight and level flight at high altitudes. Simply stated, as long as a plane maintains supersonic speed a sonic boom is continuously dragged along the flight path.

The width of the path along which the sonic boom will be heard may vary from a few miles to 50 miles or more, depending on the altitude, size and speed of the airplane, the temperature, wind, humidity, terrain and other factors.

Aircraft Mach number is an interesting factor. (Mach 1 is a speed equal to that of sound. Mach 1.5 is a speed one-half greater than the speed of sound.) The speed of the aircraft seems to play only a minor role in affecting the sonic boom intensity above Mach numbers 1.0 and 1.5, speed and weather effects combine to cause large variations in the sonic boom intensity at ground level. Because of the combined effects of temperature and wind gradients, an aircraft may sometimes be able to fly at Mach numbers up to 1.5 without causing any sonic boom disturbances on the ground. However, at Mach numbers above 1.5 the weather conditions would rarely be extreme enough to eliminate the sonic boom. Cool, calm weather conditions are generally conceded to be the most favorable for sonic boom propagation.

Naturally, most people are quite concerned about damage that can be inflicted upon their homes and places of business by the sonic boom. Scientists and engineers observing the effect of shock waves generated by atomic explosions have never observed structural damage to even the flimsiest of test structures at pressure less than 70 pounds per square foot. This is considerably greater than the pressure normally observed from a sonic boom. We can therefore conclude that structural damage to buildings and facilities is highly unlikely during routine air operations.

An incident of superficial structural damage did occur, however, when an aircraft flew supersonically at an altitude of 50 feet directly over a building. This is not a routine operation.

Tests which have shown that structural damage is highly improbable have also shown that the sonic boom is capable of cracking plaster and shattering window panes. A great deal has been heard about plaster cracks being caused by sonic booms. Experience has shown that 90 per cent of the time the crack in wall and ceiling plaster believed attributable to sonic booms are in actual fact, old cracks that have been there for some time.

Unfortunately, window glass is not in the same category. Glass is in one sense a strong material; however, it is relatively brittle compared to other building materials when used in thin sheets. The method by which it is manufactured is apt to produce internal "locked-up" stresses. The methods of installation and workmanship employed are apt to produce additional stresses due to its being bent over so slightly when installed. These pressure points cause unequal stress factors so that the sonic shock wave may shatter the glass more easily. This is not to say that sonic boom will always break windows because they definitely will not.

TRY BLUEBERRY FROST THIS SEASON

Here's a new way to enjoy Maine's wild blueberries. For a good quick dessert on a hot day, keep a supply of frozen blueberries in your freezer compartment, adding milk and sugar if desired. Pour a shallow bowl of milk and fill with the frozen berries. In a few seconds a frosty icing will form on the berries. Add the sugar last, otherwise the frost may not form.

Eat the berries while they are still frozen. And for other blueberry desserts during this blueberry season, R. A. Poray, Cooperative Extension Service fruit specialist at the University of Maine, suggests writing for a publication, "Maine Blueberries," Bulletin 390, from the Mailing Room, Winslow Hall, University of Maine, Orono.
